Details of the Programme: A lecture is delivered on the topic on "Geology-Crystallization of Magma"

Goals and objectives: Awareness of geology subject and to understand the how crystallization of magma/lavas occurs and formation of different types of rocks i.e. Pyrogenetic rocks -Igneous rock. Different rocks having different structures, textures, and composition of magma.

Highlights of the programme (One and half page write up)

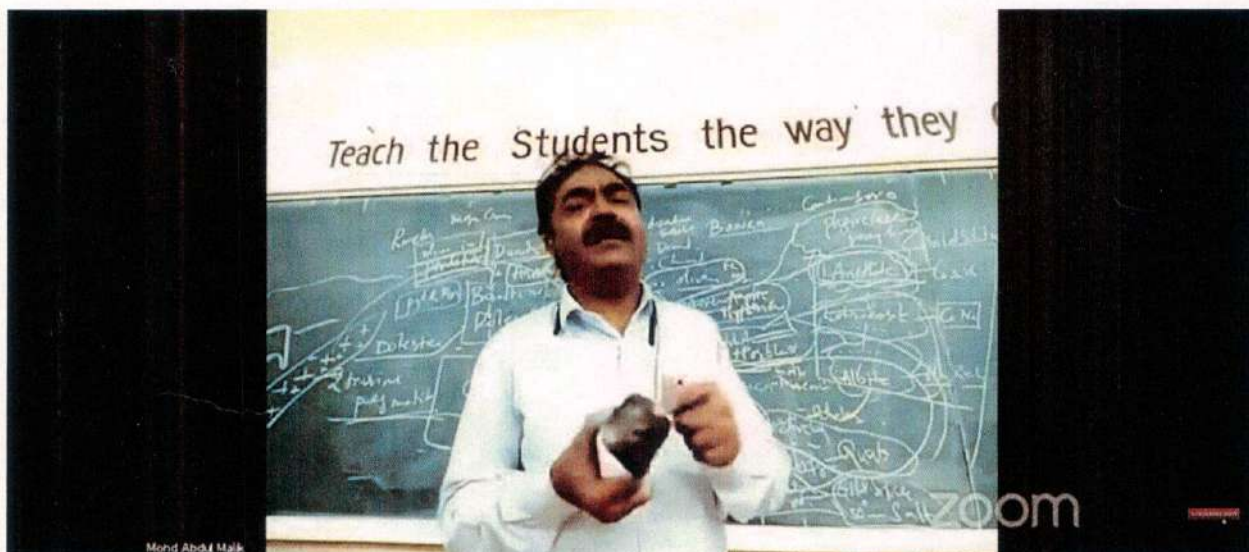

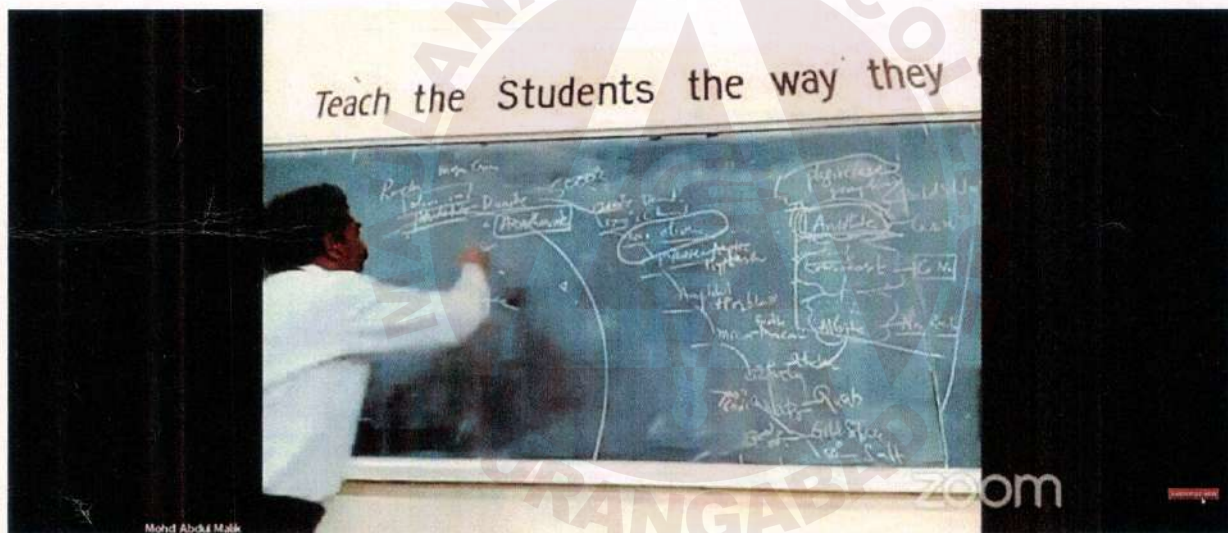

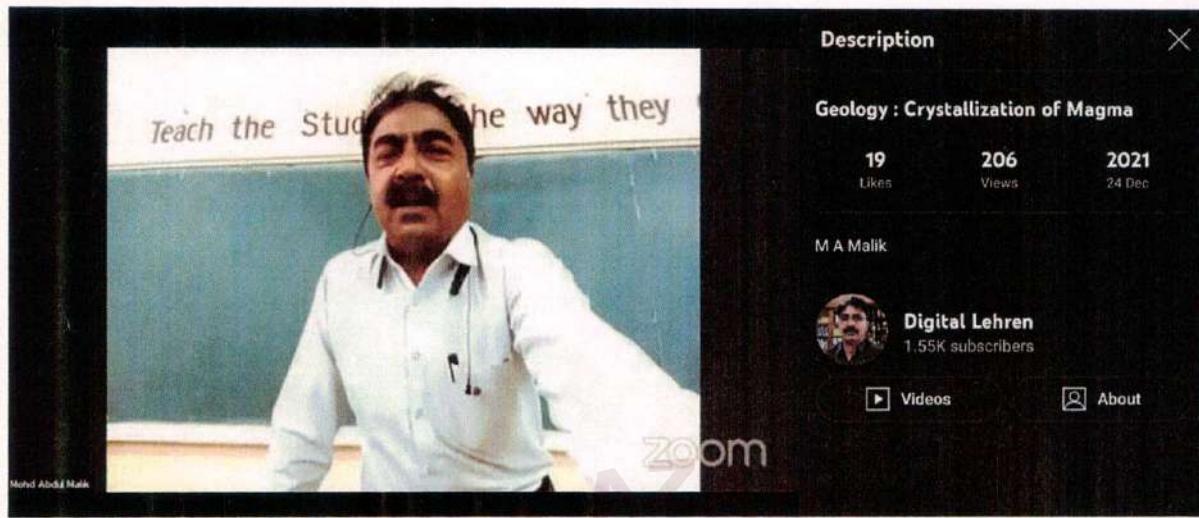

Introduction to geology subject, Magma crystallizes to form igneous rocks. Magmatic composition varies from different types of rock i.e. ultra basic, basic, Acidic and oversaturated rocks, silica differentiation of magma proved by Bowen's reaction series. In Bowens reaction series high temperature minerals crystallizes first, and formation of under saturated rocks which is ultra basic to basic rocks i.e. (Dunite Anorthosite, basalt, dolerite , gabbro), there after intermediate temperature formation of intermediate silica compositional rocks (Syenite, Trachyte, diorite) then low temperature rocks having composition of high silica oversaturated silica compositional rock (Granite, Grano-diorite, Rhyolite, pegmatite, quartz veins,). On the basis of different cooling stages of magma gives different textures (varied due to the cooling time to formation of crystal of minerals) to rock. Hence coarse texture or minerals (large grains) found in plutonic rocks, (deep seated slow cooling), inversely fast cooling fine texture found in volcanic rocks, While intermediate crystal size in Hypabyssal (intermediate between plutonic and volcanic) rocks.

Relevance and outcome : Enlightens about geology subject , Earth science, branches of geology, like (mineralogy, petrology, Crystallography, Gemmology etc). Crystallization of Magma/Lava.
